

Chart matching Moral Philosophy to the AQA AS Philosophy specification

| Moral Truth | Pages |
|---|-----------------------|
| Moral truth as God-independent transcendent truth | 31–47, 134–6 |
| The analogy with mathematical truths | 135, 151 |
| The belief in Platonic forms, moral knowledge and weakness of will | 11–12, 91–100 |
| Moral truth as based on natural facts | 54–55, 57–87, 136–144 |
| The view that what is morally desirable is to be understood in terms of what is in fact desired | 68–74 |
| The open question argument and naturalistic fallacy | 146–159 |
| The analogy with secondary qualities | 72, 145 |
| Related issues | 132–179 |

| Denial of Moral Truth | Pages |
|--|----------------|
| Moral judgements as social conventions relative to a given social group | 10–11, 168–174 |
| Moral judgements as serving a non-descriptive function, either emotivism or prescriptivism | 156–168 |
| The possibility of judging the abhorrent practices of other cultures/individuals | 170–173 |
| The possibility of moral progress and moral mistakes | 173–174 |
| The extent to which we can value what we like | 175–179 |

| Moral Decisions | Pages |
|--|-----------------------|
| The extent to which an action maximises happiness as the sole criterion by which its value can be judged | 47–9, 57–87 |
| Act | 62ff |
| Rule | 74ff |
| Preference utilitarianism | 86–87 |
| Moral rights, duties and principles are required to make ethical decisions | 30–32, 36–47, 100–104 |
| Kant's attempt to provide a rational grounding for deontological ethics & importance of moral motivation | 36–47 |
| Practical wisdom | 188–191, 219–231 |
| The value of life | 184–188 |
| Abortion | 191–204 |
| Euthanasia | 205–213 |
| Non-human animals | 213–219 |