Some students might recognize the name Christina Maslach from her work on job burnout and the creation of the ‘Maslach burnout inventory’ for understanding workplace stress. Maslach gained her PhD from Stanford University in 1971. As a graduate student she questioned Zimbardo about the methods he was employing in his prison experiment, ultimately causing him to end the experiment. Later she married him. For over 40 years she has been heavily involved in the civil rights movement, for which she was awarded a Nobel Peace Prize in 1963. In 2010 she was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for her work in South Africa. In 2002 she was the highest ranking woman among the officers accused in the Rodney King beating.
